

PULL CHOCKS, which refers to removing a set of blocks from around aircraft wheels so the aircraft can depart, is also military jargon for leaving a situation. Removing yourself from a potentially problematic scenario does wonders for psychological health. On a hike and there's a storm rolling in? At a party that's getting out of control? Sometimes staying LEFT OF BANG means that you PULL CHOCKS and avoid the problem altogether. #MilPsychJargon